

Mulugeta Ummer v Victorian Work Cover Authority

Case Overview

This document summarizes the case of Mulugeta Ummer v Victorian Work Cover Authority. The case revolves around a dispute over a workplace injury claim.

Background

Mulugeta Ummer filed a claim with the Victorian Work Cover Authority for a workplace injury. However, the authority disputed the claim, citing evidence that suggested Mulugeta did not suffer from the alleged injury.

Evidence

The following evidence was presented to support the claim that Mulugeta did not suffer from back pain:

- A receipt from a sports store showing that Mulugeta purchased running shoes on January 13, 2025, at approximately 12:40 PM.
- Witness testimony stating that Mulugeta was driving a car without any issues.
- Additional witness testimony stating that Mulugeta was able to carry a baby without experiencing any discomfort or pain.
- Testimony from witnesses who observed Mulugeta swimming at a speed that would be unusual for someone experiencing back pain.

